vards dusty, the cant trickle of so-called against exploitation. "drinking water" in the pipes is of the line of coffee and the consistency of poil and a mighty howl reverberates about the ears of the new Supervisors.

A businessman and to the Star Bulletin the other day:

"What Honolula ought to do is to turn the waterworks over to a private corporation. The corporation could lower the rates, furnish de cent water, stop the present scandal and insure a supply for the future. Why should we pay so dearly for the privilege of owning our own waterworks!"

The answer to this is contained in the following story:

L. P. Snyder, former mayor of Los Angeles now one of the Los Angeles water commissioners, recently visited San Francisco. San Fran cisco, it may be said, has been getting ready for an election upon the proposal to buy the Spring Valley water system, and Snyder was interviewed by the Examiner on the situation. Here is what he said:

"On general principles water and lighting facilities should be owned by the municipality.

"Los Angeles paid $2,000,000 for a worn-out distributing system-pand it in 1901 and paid $350,000 more than the pipe was worth. The city always owned the water itself. Since 1901 we have; Relaid every mile of pipe and have more mile age by far than San Francisco. "Cleared a profit of at least $1,000,000 a year.

"Reduced service rates nearly one-half. "Reduced meter rates more than one-half. "Created a thoroughly up-to-date water system that any city the size of San Francisco and Los Angeles would be glad to have.

"If San Francisco decides to enter the water business by taking over the Spring Valley property, the citizens must insist on these conditions:

"That no political considerations must be allowed to have any influence in the affairs of the water "That the works must be operated on the same principles as any successful private business. "That the city must be prepared to buy the best engineering and administrative brains to be found. Los Angeles has been especially fortunate in having William Mulholland as engineer

The citizens must have a pride in the work. San Francisco is proud of the record of the Geary street railway. It is a success. The water plant can be made equally successful. But the waterworks will not be a success unless the honest, decent men and women of all callings and avocations stand firmly to the proposition that politics must never be allowed a single inch of room

"We have solved our problem. The city system is a success, the Owens river aqueduct is a success, and with such an example, San Francisco ought not to hesitate-always provided San Francisco is willing to bar the politicians and the incompetents," he

MUSIC IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The stanch advocates of musical development in the public schools will take satisfaction in a report from Cakland, California. Growth in the realm of music in the Oakland schools that Hawan is considered remarkable, is shown in a report to the Board of Education. Today there are nearly 900 students in elementary and high the bill in full, and the following lets so assembled the first serveant or each school bands and orchestras, while six years ago there were but two small orchestras.

In the old days, the musical portion of the school child's education was handicapped in many ways, chief among them a lack of ade quate instruction and the proper band instruments. These defects have been remedied and speaker, Hon. H. L. Hoisten, on March | their beds or bunks as they are called now Oakland schools have many of the best honor instruments obtainable, with expert instruction.

In the high schools, credits are allowed for other required studies. This not only increases the interest but promotes efficiency in the musical course.

LOS ANGELES WANTS IT.

Los Angeles wants that steamship line to Honolulu. Douglas White, who came here with the Great Northern excursion, said to the Los Angeles Ad Club:

. "There is plenty of good trade in Hawaii and it is time Los Angeles merchants step out and get it. It is worth going after, and it is my belief that in the near future a line of steamships will be running between Port Los Angeles and Honolulu."
